

Mr Mark Gosling, B.A. (Hons)

Mark Gosling joined Victoria College in September 2007 as Head of History and was promoted to Assistant Headmaster Pastoral in 2010. In his role he works closely with staff across the school to ensure students are supported through any well-being issues or concerns. Mark is also the Designated Safeguarding Lead for the school and works closely with Housemasters, Inclusion Co-ordinator, Safeguarding Governors Committee and outside agencies such as the Police and Children Services. He also teaches History and Politics at Victoria College.

Mark graduated from Hull University in 1992 after studying American History, which also included a year's placement at the University of California San Diego and completed his teacher training in 1996/97 through the University of Wales Aberystwyth. He is also a trained A level History Examiner, and in the past, has acted as a Team Leader for Edexcel involved in the training of A level examiners for History.

Mark is a published author and has contributed to the writing of A level History and Key Stage Three textbooks. Prior to teaching he served in the Metropolitan Police and before this, worked with young adults with learning difficulties and challenging behaviour which provided valuable experiences before pursuing a career in teaching. Mark enjoys travelling, as well as sports such as rugby, cycling and golf.
